Hello!

I found the job listing for the Web Developer on the UA job board and am very interested at the possibility of joining and working with the University.

I saw in the listing referenced your need for somebody with experience in full stack web development and that had caught my attention. In my degree program at the University of Arizona, I used the XAMPP stack to create dynamic sites that had a backend running PHP with a MariaDB database. I've also dabbled in Python development in my own time and am very familiar with the language.

During my time going to school, working, and experimenting on my own projects, I have developed strong time management skills, resourcefulness, and a curiosity for trying new ideas.

I would be very interested to speak with you further about this position. I am available during regular business hours for in person, video, or phone contact.

Thank you for your time,
Isaac Harper
